THEFT AND RESET

Grangemouth Men Fined at Falkirk Sheriff Court

Circumstances surrounding an offence of theft and reset were examined at Falkirk Sheriff Court on Monday by Sheriff-Substitute Hendry, John Morrison, 37 Paris Street, Grangemouth, charged with having, from a filling station at the premises of the Scottish Oils, Ltd., Grangemouth, 25 gallons of petroleum spirit stolen from a motor car. Andrew Henderson, 25 Almond Street, Grangemouth, was charged with having reset the petrol tins. Both accused pleaded guilty to the complaint.

Morrison, Procurator-Fiscal, was in the employment of the Scottish Oils, Ltd., at the date of the offence. There was a very large quantity of petrol used and disposed of at the filling station. Henderson was in charge of the pumps used for servicing of motor cars belonging to the company. It was stated that Henderson was an acquaintance of the accused and had got him to deliver petrol and the number of gallons in the charge sheet. The accused was fined £15s. Mr Morrison added that he had now lost his employment. Nothing, except that I have a job with a good firm. It was stated that he had been on the staff of White for some time. White and his family by the way, returned the day of a football match of petrol. There was no objection. Henderson added that he was prepared to accept all responsibility in connection with the case himself. He asked White's job, but he had no objection. White had admitted to his employers. He was given the option of 30 days' imprisonment or a fine of £10. Henderson was fined £3, with 20 days' imprisonment. A fortnight was allowed for the fine.

FALKIRK'S "DIFFICULT RULES"

Female Accused Told They Are No Worse Than Elsewhere

"I come to Falkirk occasionally and try to follow all your difficult rules," said Alice Elizabeth Erbe, commercial traveller, 58 Southwold Road, Ralston, Paisley, when charged at Falkirk Police Court on Tuesday with having allowed her car to stand on a street in the burgh for a longer period than was necessary for the loading or unloading of goods or the setting down or picking up of passengers. She pleaded guilty to the complaint.

Mr J. R. W. Ferguson, Burgh Prosecutor, retorted that the rules and regulations operating in Falkirk were no more difficult than elsewhere.

Accused added that she travelled all over Scotland, and really thought the rules were difficult.

A fine of 7s 6d was imposed by Bailie Turnbull.

For similar offences, George Elder, 100, bookseller, "Myora," Maggie Wood's Loan, Falkirk, who admitted two previous convictions, was fined £1; fines of 10s were imposed on Dennis Martin, clerk, 1 Lochgreen Road, Falkirk; John McDonald Burns, commercial traveller, 41 Dalgarin Crescent, Cupar; David Sinclair, moolen traveller, 19 Summerside Street, Leith; and Patrick Lovatt, commercial traveller, 29 Hamilton Park Avenue, Glasgow; Henry Mungles Dunlop, commercial traveller, 146 Niddrie Road, Glasgow; Richard Glass, mantle manufacturer, 8 Corrour Road, Newlands, Glasgow; and Wilfred Edwards, store manager, 25 Victoria Terrace, Dunfermline, were each fined 7s 6d.

NEW POLICE COURT CASES

For the first time, the Police Court also dealt with a number of cases in respect of failure to conform to the indication to stop given by traffic signals at Bainsford and Camelon canal bridges, and failure to "halt" at major roads. Previously these types of cases were dealt with at Falkirk Sheriff Court. Fines of 5s were imposed on pedal cyclists David Allan, iron dresser, 94 Grahamsdyke Street, Laurieston; Forbes Reg, labourer, 102 Orchard Street, Camelon; James Laing, works painter, 96 North Main Street, Carronshore; Harry Johnson, painter, 19 Millburn Street, Falkirk; James Dick, painter, 36 Dalderse Avenue, Falkirk; James Erskine, moulder, Carronshore Street, Falkirk; James Clarkin, galvaniser, 471 Culler Terrace, Falkirk; George Waterson Bowie, apprentice engineer, 17 Haugh Street, Falkirk; John Walker, patternmaker, 28 Campfield Street, Falkirk; Harry Allan, cooper, 15 Carronside Street, Falkirk; William Davidson, labourer, 133 Alloa Road, by Larbert; and Alexander Dow, moulder, 31 James Street, Stenhousemuir; all of whom admitted having failed to conform to the indications to stop given by the Bainsford Bridge and Camelon Bridge traffic signals. For a similar type of offence, James Patrick, pattern flier, 66 Rufe Place, Falkirk, who was riding a motor cycle, was fined 10s.

Fines of 5s each were also imposed on the following pedal cyclists who failed to halt at major roads:—Alexander Graham Fraser, 38 Manselton Road, Camelon; Benjamin Allan, bookbinder, 69 Wall Street, Camelon; Alexander Parker, labourer, 12 Kennard Street, Falkirk; William Bain, cooper, 29 Campfield Street, Falkirk; William Devine, pithead worker, 3 Dillon's Buildings, Howgate, Falkirk; and James Ford, labourer, 3 Cockburn Street, Falkirk.

DEFAULDED EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE.—Joseph Cartey, 36 St. Catharines, Maddiston, was charged at Falkirk Sheriff Court on Monday with having, on July 27 and 29, 1938, at the Employment Exchange, Maddiston, pretended to officials there that he was unemployed on July 23 and 26, and was therefore entitled to unemployment benefit for these dates, inducing the officials to pay him 10s, the truth being that on these specified dates he was employed by a firm of stevedores at Grangemouth Docks. Cartey pleaded guilty. Sheriff-Substitute Robert Hendry imposed on him a fine of 30s, with the option of 10 days' imprisonment.

SAFETY PLANS MUST CONTINUE

of Gas Mask Containers

Essential machinery of A.R.P. is being run steadily during the week. The next stage will be the general distribution of gas mask containers to be made good and provided for bad weather, and that should be completed. The containers are to be dug and no more are to be made for the present. A continuing campaign planned will be carried out. The general distribution of gas mask containers has already begun. Factories are to be kept in condition must be from heat and strong light. The boxes, which are similar in size and appearance, will be kept in condition must be from heat and strong light. VOLUNTARY SERVICES

The women's voluntary service took stock on Monday of the work of last week, when women were in thousands to the London and to regional centres. The service shows that in an emergency there is plenty of work for women and that women will be called upon to do it. An official told a reporter that the figures have not yet been published, but there is no doubt that recycling home from work he was in collision with a lorry.

FATALLY INJURED ON FIRST HOLIDAY.—Robert Weir (65), single, belonging to Ballygally, near Broughshare, County Antrim, died in Kilmarnock Infirmary on Sunday, as a result of injuries received in an accident on Thursday. Weir, who was on holiday in Irvine, first he had ever had, went to visit relatives in Springside, and on alighting from the bus, fell and sustained a double fracture of the skull.

"TO KISS MR CHAMBERLAIN."—Listeners to a broadcast of the second act of the opera, "Lakme," at the Paris Opera Comique on Sunday afternoon, heard one of the women characters say—"I want to go back to London." This was in her part, but she added—"To kiss Mr Chamberlain," which was not in her part. A tremendous outburst of applause from the audience followed this impromptu addition to the lines.
